

Technology gives us so many advantages previous generations could never have imagined.

- We can track a package as it travels around the world.
- We can pay our bills with one click – no pen, paper, or stamps needed.
- We can read books, watch movies, keep up with current events real-time.
- And the list goes on...

At colleges, technology serves us well by making many operational and academic functions easier and more efficient. Yet some tasks continue to be challenging, like capturing important student information and keeping it up to date—critical for emergency alerts, registrar communication, billing, and universal communication between faculty and students.

College administrators have tried to improve the student information collection process with technology solutions like email, Web site posts, and portal announcements, but the results have been disappointing—typically receiving updates from less than 40-50% of the student body.

Timecruiser has a solution that takes the pain away – eCheckin™. It's an administrative module that helps institutions using Datatel WebAdvisor and Timecruiser Solutions to capture critical demographic and emergency contact information directly from users upon successful entrance into the portal.

HOW eCHECKIN CAN WORK FOR YOU:

Your institution targets a specific group of users for student information updates, such as transfer students or incoming freshman, or graduating seniors. When these people log into CampusCruiser, eCheckin redirects them to WebAdvisor and where they are prompted to submit the necessary information, such as emergency contact numbers, demographic data, and anything else the college may require. When the information is successfully submitted, the students are immediately returned to their

In the fall of 2008, Widener University used eCheckin and captured crucial data from 100% of the targeted students within two weeks.

CampusCruiser portal so they can continue with their normal routines.

eCheckin achieves results where other methods fall short because it is built-into the portal. Today's multi-tasking students experience the Contact Form update request as a brief interruption of the portal login process, rather than bothersome "paperwork."

FROM THE STUDENT'S PERSPECTIVE

Maria, Incoming Freshman

As an incoming student, Maria has been designated as one of the students required to check-in, where she will provide her emergency contact information to the college, and the college will give Maria access to the official Student Handbook.

Instead of joining the long line at the Registrar's office on the first day of school, Maria logs onto CampusCruiser the night before.

At authentication, CampusCruiser recognizes that she belongs to the group of users the college designated for eCheckin, and immediately redirects her to the required check-in forms.

Maria fills out her emergency contact information and successfully downloads the Official Student Handbook. She is then brought back to CampusCruiser where she can continue to review her email and prepare for her classes for the new term.

Sanjay, Graduating Senior

The Registrar's office has determined that Sanjay is eligible for graduation filing. Instead of sending a letter or e-mail to Sanjay, the administrator adds Sanjay into the "graduation eCheckin" group and designates the graduation filing workflow for his account.

Everyday Sanjay logs onto CampusCruiser, and today because his account is included in the "graduation eCheckin" group, he is redirected to the graduation filing online forms. Without taking a step out of his dorm room, he fills out the form, submits it to the Registrar's system, and then he is automatically redirected back to CampusCruiser where he can continue with his course work for his final term.
